"No Emperor" Big Nations Tell Charles

ALLIED ULTIMATUM WARN HUNGARY TO KEEP EX-RULER OUT

RESTORATION OF HAPS-BURG DYNASTY WOULD ENTAIL SERIOUS CONSEQUENCES.

WHERE IS KARL? Reports That Former Emperor Is Marching on Budapest Are Denied.

(BULLETIN.)

Steinamanger, the ex-emperor, declared he had no desire for his return to Hungary, but that his departure from Hungary would be conditional upon permission to issue an proclamation to the Magyars explaining the "unfavorable circumstances" compelling his withdrawal and saying that he, as king, temporarily confirmed the regency of Admiral Horthy.

The former ruler said his declaration upon issuing a royal from Admiral Horthy that he be allowed to return to Budapest, coupled with a threat of military measures against him.

ALLIES WARN HUNGARY TO KEEP CHARLES OUT

Paris.—Warning was given Hungary, Friday, by the allies that the restoration of the Hapsburg dynasty would entail serious consequences for the Hungarian nation.

This warning, issued through the council of ambassadors, constituted a virtual ultimatum from the allied powers, including Great Britain, France, Italy and their lesser assistants. It was given an additional weight by the fact that it was communicated officially to the allied states which Hungary is surrounded—Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Rumania and Poland, at least the first three of which, comprising the "little entente," have declared themselves ready to take military action against the Hapsburg restoration.

Runners Not Confirmed.

Meanwhile, rumors reaching Paris through officials and other reliable channels, that ex-Emperor Charles was marching upon Budapest at the head of a large body of troops to replace himself upon the throne, were denied.

Official advice to the French foreign office emphasized that Charles was still at Steinamanger, near Vienna, and negotiations were in progress for his removal from Hungary, presumably back to Switzerland, through Austria, and that quiet prevailed in the Hungarian capital.

Direct Budapest advice carried official denial of the report that Charles was moving on the capital with troops and declared he was safely guarded at Steinamanger.

Resolutions Adopted.

Resolutions protesting against the restoration of former Emperor Charles, January, and warning the Hungarian government that the consequences of such an event would be disastrous, were adopted by the council of ambassadors. The resolutions were presented by Jules Cambon, acting in the name of the French government.

Recall Terms of Treaty.

The events in which Hungary is the theater, the resolutions read, "place the principal allied powers under obligation to recall to the government and the people of Hungary the terms of their declaration of February 4, 1921.

In this declaration the council of ambassadors declared the principal allied powers, considering the restoration of the Hapsburgs, "would not be party to which the war had been fought, and at variance with the basis of the peace settlement, and that such restoration would be neither recognized nor tolerated by them."

Imperial Foundation of Peace.

"Faithful to the principles enunciated in that declaration," continue the resolutions, "the allies have the duty to repeat that the restoration of the Hapsburgs would emperil the very foundation of the peace, and that it would be neither recognized nor tolerated."

The allied powers count upon the Hungarian government, conscious of the gravity of the situation that would be created by the return

Mrs. Stillman Is Allowed $7,500 Monthly Alimony; Family Letters Are Barred

(ER ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—Temporary alimony of $7,500 a month, counsel fees of $35,000, and $12,500 for expenses were fixed Friday for Mrs. Anne U. Stillman, by Justice Morrissey, in the suit for divorce instituted against her by James A. Stillman, president of the National City bank of New York.

Mrs. Stillman had asked alimony of $10,000 a month and $75,000 in counsel fees.

Confidential Letters Ruled Out.

In his decision the Justice ruled out of the divorce suit all confidential and privileged, the alleged "confidential letters" written to Mr. Stillman by his wife. He also ruled out letters alleged to have been written to Mrs. Stillman by Fred Beauvais, an Indian guide, who was named in the banker's complaint as co-respondent and accused of being the father of Mrs. Stillman's infant son, Guy.

The decision set forth that Mrs. Stillman had pleaded recriminations in her answer to her banker's complaint and that both husband and wife made charges "founded upon an allegation of adultery."

Not Competent to Testify.

A husband or wife is not competent to testify against the other on such allegations," the decision said. The Justice decided that the affidavits to which the letters were appended contained material that Mrs. Stillman could not testify to, and it was upon this ground that the communications were barred.

Judge Joseph Morschauer pointed out that his inhibition against admitting the alleged messages from Beauvais to Mrs. Stillman applied only to the motion under consideration, and that they might be offered again in connection with later motions.

Wife Was Hysterical.

Referring to the alleged letter written to Mr. Stillman by his wife to the admission of which her attorney objected and which it was charged by counsel for the banker she wrote "in a moment of hysteria, implicating herself," the decision said:

"Communications and transactions between husband and wife were not only recognized as privileged, neither could be compelled to disclose what took place between them close and nothing so competent witness to testify as to such transactions or communications of a confidential nature or induced by the marital relation."

Would Destroy Confidence.

"From experience it was found that for less evil would result from the exclusion of such testimony than from its admission. It may be individual cases work themselves out, but the destruction of confidence between a husband and wife would cause much misery and affect the marriage relation. This rule is founded upon sound public policy."

Wife Makes Charges.

Referring to Mrs. Stillman's charge that her banker husband is the father of a 30-month-old son she is the mother of a 30-month-old son (Continued on Page 4.)

Out of State Students May
Be Driven from U. W.

(ER ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Madison.—Non-resident students at the University of Wisconsin will be required to pay a $500 annual tuition if a bill introduced by Clark M. Perry, Oshkosh, through the municipal committee, is passed. The intent of the measure is to drive foreign students from the school and reduce the cost of operation. There are at present 2,000 students from out of the state in attendance.

The state's education manager has stated that the average cost to the state of educating an individual student is between $200 and $250. The present tuition rate is $148.

"Suckers" Swindled by Alleged Bogus Stock Seller

(ER ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Chicago.—An alleged bogus stock selling concern which had secured more than $100,000 from 1,800 persons, is said to have been disclosed by the issuance of a federal warrant charging misuse of the mails by Arthur Barry, for whom federal authorities are seeking. Four hundred kinds of stock were offered for sale, federal investigators said, to persons on a "sucker list" extending from Massachusetts to Denver, and records are said to have shown branch offices in various cities.

Wife Throws Acid in Eyes of Rival Teacher

(ER ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Jerome, Ariz.—Mrs. Clarence V. Hopkins, wife of a mining engineer, was rushed to the Prescott county jail Thursday morning to avoid violence against her. Following the throwing of acid into the face of Lucille Gough, a school teacher here.

Miss Gough entered a restaurant where Miss Gallagher and another teacher were having breakfast. She went to the kitchen, and, according to witnesses, took the bottle of acid from her muff, poured its contents into a tumbler and went to the back where the two teachers were seated.

Mrs. Hopkins seized Miss Gallagher, held by the hair, pushed her hat back and poured the acid into her eyes, burning it in with her hand. Her hand was severely burned.

During the war Mr. Hopkins, Miss Gallagher and another local teacher were in Washington doing war work. While there, the three had dinner and theater party. Afterward, they returned to Jerome. Mrs. Hopkins attempted to dissuade the other teacher, after which Mrs. Hopkins left the city. She returned only a short time ago.

EVENING SCHOOL ENDS BANNER YEAR

Dorrans Claims One of Most Successful Years Since Plan Originated.

The sessions of the evening school Thursday evening marked the winding up of activities and sessions until next fall and also marked the close of one of the best evening school years since the plan was started here. Interest was kept up in general throughout the year since last fall and few classes were forced to shut down because of failing off of attendance. There are always some classes that must do this and late in February the physical training class, taught by Miss Pauline Callen, and the Spanish class were stopped. The others kept a good attendance even at the closing session.

Sept. 1, M. Dorrans is well pleased with the success of the school and is looking forward to its reopening next fall.

71 Women Take Course.

The enrollment blanks show that more women than men attended, 71 women and 51 men having registered. This is probably due to the size of the sewing and cooking classes. Classes in shop and auto classes were necessary to fill because of the lack of equipment.

The following were the classes and teachers:

17 Teachers Listed.

Auto mechanics, H. L. Coss; and Thomas Fennal; citizenship, A. E. Cory and Glen Gardner; Mechanical drawing, H. L. Dooms; afternoon sewing classes, Miss Edna Lunder; morning sewing classes, Miss Edna Lunder; Miss Sadie Bunn; auto control, Buelholz and Sadie Lee; shop mathematics, John Arbutnott; shorthand, Miss Marian Scanlon; Miss Amelia Rosenbaum; bank accounting, L. V. Ballard; letter writing, H. J. Merritt; the university extension department at Madison; and machine shop work by F. A. Wright.

The classes in bank accounting and citizenship will continue for a few weeks.

ALLIES WARN HUNGARY OF RESTORING RULER

to the throne of the former sovereign, to take efficient measures to suppress the attempts whose success, even momentarily, could not but have disastrous consequences for Hungary.

"This declaration will be telegraphed to the allied high commissioner in Budapest and communicated officially to the Hungarian delegation in Paris and the representatives of the bordering states of Czechoslovakia, Jugoslavia, Rumania and Poland."

Charles still is in Hungary.

Two authentic facts appear to stand out of the mass of sensational rumors relative to the attempt of former Emperor Charles to re-establish himself as head of the Hungarian state. The first is that Charles is still in Hungary, and the second is that the "little entente" comprising Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Jugoslavia and the "big entente" are ready to strike if the former emperor succeeds in his enterprise.

Premier Bela's newspaper, the Exclusive, maintains the entente governments are considering steps they will take in the event the Hungarian situation is not rapidly cleared up. Among these measures, it is declared, the blockade of Hungary is being considered.

Doubts Kurt's Success.

Ivan Prazovsky, Hungarian minister to France, disclosed his disbelief of reports that Charles has been given up. His attempt and says the delay in his departure from Hungary might be attributable to the necessity of obtaining the consent of the Austrian and Jugoslav governments to his passage across their territories.

"Hungary," the minister concludes, "had enough cause to let. While the recent could perhaps like a monkey, they want to have it established through regular constitutional channels. The situation in Hungary is improving; exchange rates are rising and, consequently, public opinion is hostile to any violent changes."

Safe Conduct Demanded.

Count Teleky said he charged his message was at present in conference with His Imperial Charles for whom no safe conduct had been demanded of the Austrian government.

The foreign office has failed to receive any confirmation of reports that Charles was heading an army marching upon Budapest. Its latest dispatches declare that calm prevails at Steinmann where the emperor now is, except among a certain portion of troops.

Charles' advice is to be taken seriously from the camp to the castle of Prince Batthyany at Kormend, to the south of Steinmann, with Count Teleky accompanying him.

AUSTRIA TO PERMIT PASSAGE OF CHARLES.

Venice.—Official information was received here that former Emperor Charles would leave that country.

The Hungarian minister in Vienna called on Chancellor Mayr earlier this week and asked him in principle if the Austrian government would permit Charles to cross Austrian territory on his way to Switzerland. Chancellor Mayr replied in the affirmative. This interview followed a visit to the chancellor by the Swiss minister who stated his government would be willing to grant Charles safe conduct over the Swiss border.

Admiral Loyal to Charles.

Calls at the Hungarian legation Thursday afternoon were assured that the bulk of the Hungarian army was loyal to Admiral Horthy, the regent. These incidents tend to lessen the tension prevailing Thursday as a result of sensational reports favorable to the monarchist cause.

Reports are current here that an adjutant on the staff of General Lehar, who is supporting the former emperor, is in Vienna and has said that the first move of Charles would be to proclaim himself King of Central West Hungary.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA PLANS RIGOROUS BLOCKADE.

Prague, Czechoslovakia.—The cabinet is considering a rigorous blockade of Hungary and a military demonstration on the Hungarian frontier, should former Emperor Charles refuse to leave the country. Eventually more drastic action may be taken.

BISHOP ROTT WINGED HIS CAR TO HUNGARY.

Budapest.—Bishop Rott of the diocese of Esztergom was, according to the best information obtainable here, the preponderating influence in urging former Emperor Charles to attempt to regain the Hungarian throne.

Bishop Rott was in Prangin, Charles' Swiss refuge, a week ago to christen the ex-ruver's new-born daughter. He persuaded the latter to return to Hungary immediately. It is alleged, declaring the pro-Hungarian organization could not be effective without the former emperor's presence there. The success of King selected later as a candidate for commissioner of agriculture.

Women will play a prominent part in the proposed recalls. They were granted recognition Thursday by the committee of 21 called the convention which resulted in the recall being ordered. The committee of 42 will select the candidate for commissioner of agriculture and map out other campaign plans.

N. P. Counter Recall.

Reports from Bismarck are to the effect that the nonpartisan league legislative committee will institute a county recall against independent state officials.

Takes Over Newspaper.

To meet this campaign, the Nonpartisan League's state executive committee issued a call for a fund of $10,000 and announced the Fargo Courier-News, official daily newspaper of the League, had been taken over entirely by the national organization to be directed by the state committee.

The Courier-News, in a three-column front page editorial Friday, declares the leaguers "have got to fight. Either that or we must surrender our independence as free born American citizens and accept dictates of Wall street, the grain bankers and the railroads."

They're forcing a recall election in North Dakota because they think the farmers are broke and they're positioning the recall until November because they believe by that time the farmers will be even less able to defend themselves than they are now," in editorial conclusion.

"They believe that by continuing their strike of the farmers they can have the Nonpartisan League headquarters closed by November, and the farmers' papers bankrupt and they will accomplish their ends unless the farmers give money to prevent success of this plan."

Hard for Farmers to Give.

"It's hard for farmers to give. They have mighty little. Many of them have nothing left. Many give nothing and it goes to the expense of answering one fight that seemingly never ends. And that is just why big business is keeping up the fight. It intends to keep you farmers out."

SEEK INJUNCTION IN MC GINLEY CASE

Janesville Attorneys Take Action to Have Case Tried Here.

An injunction is sought by Janesville attorneys for the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad against the trial of the case in which Clarence McGinley, this city, is suing the railroad for $75,000 damages, holding it in Brown county, Minnesota. The action is a novel case founded on court jurisdiction.

The railroad company in its complaint seeks that Clarence, who left both legs in a railroad accident here, and his attorney be forever restrained from prosecution in any other court than in Wisconsin. The hearing to show cause why a permanent injunction to this effect should not be granted will be heard in the Rock county circuit court in Janesville on April 12.

Suit Is Started

Clarence McGinley is a resident of Janesville and has been for several years. For sometime prior to June 1, 1920, he was employed by the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway Company as a car journal box packer at and around its yards and grounds in Janesville and particularly in what is known as the west yards. On June 12, 1920, while still in the employment of the railroad company, he received an injury which resulted in the loss of both his legs below the knee. Considerable negotiation in relation to settlement followed. Davis and Michel, personal injury attorneys of Minneapolis, finally entered into a contract with Mr. McGinley and instituted an action in Renville county, Minnesota, in his favor to recover $75,000 for the injury.

Seek Injunction

In its complaint for an injunction the plaintiff assigns many reasons why the case should not be tried elsewhere than in Wisconsin. Among others are these:

McGinley is a resident of Janesville and the railroad company is a Wisconsin corporation and all the necessary and material witnesses reside in or near this city, there being at least a dozen of these; that a view by the court and jury of the location of the injury is essential, which could not be obtained if the case were tried in Minnesota; that the distance from Janesville to the place in Minnesota is more than 500 miles and the necessary witnesses of witnesses from this state can not be enforced in the district court of Renville county by process or otherwise; that if the depositions of these witnesses are taken on the court and jury will not have the benefit or advantage of seeing the witnesses personally in court and their manner of testifying observed; that in Minnesota a verdict may be rendered by 10 of the 12 jurors which is contrary to the usual and customary practice of the citizens of Wisconsin by its constitution; that several of the witnesses are essential to the prosecution of the business of the railroad and it would hamper it to be obliged to take them to Minnesota; that the cost of trying the case in that state would be very much greater than in Wisconsin and if tried it would be attended by great and unnecessary loss of time on the part of the railroad company, its attorneys and employees and would greatly discommode it in its operations as a public carrier.

Janesville Attorneys in Case.

It is also stated in the complaint that it would be unjust and inequitable to allow the action against it to continue in Minnesota while it was brought in that state for the purpose of obtaining a verdict inadmissible and to the advantage of the railroad company. It also offers in its complaint to furnish such security as shall be required by the court for payment of any judgment that might be secured by McGinley in any suit prosecuted in Rock county and to do and perform such other things as shall or may be directed by the court in the premises so that Mr. McGinley may secure his just rights.

H. F. Killien of Milwaukee, and Nolan and Dougherty of Janesville, are the attorneys for the plaintiff.

Voice of the People

Editor Gazette:

A few days ago when the women presented their petition, the Gazette quoted Mayor Welsh as follows: "Every one who knows me, knows that I stand for law, order and decency. No one can show anything to the contrary. My first act when I became mayor two years ago was to go to the acting Chief of Police Goyer. I told him that I expected him to enforce the laws and if he did he wouldn't hear any more from me, but if he didn't he would. Well, he heard from me."

It was not necessary to go back two years and try to make up the past, and it would have been far more decent if he had told me his present chief had shown the number of arrests for gambling the year past. I thought I'd pay no attention to these remarks, but so many people have misunderstood my silence as admitting his charges, that in fairness to myself and the public I want to tell just what I heard from Mr. Welsh.

In April, 1919, after Mr. Welsh was elected Mayor and before he took office, he came to me and said he wanted me to clean up some of these gambling places which had been operating since the time he became mayor. I went to Goyer's on North Academy street, asked him to unlock his rear door, and found eleven playing cards. I didn't have time to inquire if they were playing snore or rummy, but while the men were hurriedly pocketing their money I grabbed the cards and $30 from the center of the table and turned the men out. I went to the station, the men took them to the station. I asked the District Attorney if I should hold them until Monday morning and he said "No," but have each man furnish $100 bond. Mr. Goyer gave me a check for $100 and the men were let out. The next day Mr. Welsh (not mayor) came to the station very much annoyed. He said, "What do you mean? I told you what you have got?" I told him I had carried out his instructions. He said, "Why, those men are friends of mine. They belong to my church. Some of them were down to church to see me this morning. We can't take them into court." After a pause he said: "Tell you what, I'll go to the judge and fix it so that Goyer will get a jail fine and the others get off and that will scare the rest." On Monday Goyer appeared in court, pleaded guilty, was fined $150 and costs, but the rest did not appear.

About May 1, 1919, the police chased a man whose name will be given if necessary, one evening and Officer Handy finally arrested him for speeding and told him to appear in court next morning. He did not appear, so the warrant was issued and asked him why he didn't appear. He said he had seen Mayor Welsh and the mayor had told him he didn't have to appear. I took him to court and he paid his fine.

A few weeks later we arrested a Monterey man and his friend came to the station and asked me to release the man and I said I couldn't, and he said: "Mr. Welsh worked hard for me in Monterey and helped elect me and we've got to show him some consideration. You let him go."

I also remember when his son was arrested for fighting in the street here. Mayor Welsh tried to intercede with the municipal court and told the judge what he ought to do, and I remember how the judge called him "Hebe" and he paid his fine.

At 2:30 Sunday afternoon from St. John's Lutheran church, North Blair street, Company "N" will be out in a body, armed, to escort the body from the home, 615 Western avenue, to the church and from there to the cemetery. Lieut. Pearl Grisham will be in command.

The pallbearers will be August Knopf, Walter Hill, William Schiebelin, Harry Schiebelin, Ralph Lauchs and Harry Peske. The firing squad will be in charge of Sgt. Harry Hallenbeck. Bugler Rush Berg will sound taps.

LOBBYISTS AND THE STATE LOBBY.

Lobbyists are everywhere the bane of legislative existence.

By that it is not meant that the person or group having in mind the passage or killing of some measure, talking to members either collectively or individually, are to be placed in the same list. But the man who goes on the job at the opening of the legislature and remains, is the lobbyist who should be eliminated.

It makes no difference whether his object is good or bad.

The whole bunch should be incommunicably forced out. When the legislature of Wisconsin refuses to issue lobbyist permits and wipes out the lobby entirely, it will have accomplished much in the way of good legislation.

Hearings before committees, where the position of men and groups of citizens, are given freely are not to be considered in this category.

They have right, justification and every argument in their favor. But the member of the legislature is now button-holed, cajoled, threatened, followed, pursued, talked to, bored, wearied and worried by the paid men who are at Madison for the purpose of making legislation either for personal reasons or in the interest of some legislative "bug" that some one is willing to pay for.

It has been the custom of the persons best represented by such organizations as the nonpartisan league and the La Follette followers, to wallow the lobbyist as the tool of the corporations. Now it would seem from the firing of one of the La Follette lobbyists, that the worst example comes from that side of the house. That is generally the case. May we ask what business a lobbyist for the Progressive League, the La Follette organization, would have before the legislature? Anyhow it is hardly to be thought that former assemblyman, Glenn Turner, was working for highly altruistic motives and purely for his health, even in healthful and attractive Madison.

The assembly has started well. Mr. Turner has been barred from the assembly. He has been in the language of the plain American people "caned." It is to be hoped that the can supply will be renewed and that the lobby will be forcibly discharged in squads, platoons, companies and battalions. Each one of the lobbyists should be given his discharge ticket. We can get along without them. When we cannot proceed without lobbyists, we may abolish the legislature. Mr. Turner, of the La Follette phalanx, working for the "plain people" and so much the better, beautifully heads the list. There are some 200 more that should follow four feet apart and keep in step as they go down the marble corridors on the way to the front door.

Only four more days until election. Mud market strong and active.

THE FIGHT FOR LOYALTY IN GREEN COUNTY.

It is also worthy of note that lignite was the source of the starching used abroad during the war as a sugar substitute.

Again lignite, through one of its by-products, paraffin, is relieving the soap families that has annoyed Europe for these past several years. It is hoped by European scientists that paraffin produced from lignite will eventually end the shortage of edible fats by making it unnecessary to use them for industrial purposes.

So Europe has awakened to lignite possibilities. The United States, encouraged by the Bureau of Mines is awakening. Our lignite fields are vastly larger than any in European nations. Development is all that is needed. And with black coal at its present high figure there is every inducement for both Government and industry to push that development.

As the lobbyist hits the marble steps at the state capital he is reminded that it far harder to walk back.

BERGDOLL NEXT.

Release of the two Americans held in prison by the Germans for attempting to take Bergdoll back to America will be received with satisfaction by the American people. What we want next is Mr. Bergdoll and then the people want the man responsible for his escape properly and fully punished. That is about the only way to satisfactorily wash the dirty slate.

Coal Must Change Color

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington, D. C.—"Black as coal" won't mean anything in the United States in another 20 years because most of the coal which we will use then will be brown in color and will come in the form of neat briquettes which will not soil the fingers. This new fuel should also be much cheaper, for the by-products which will be extracted in the process of making the briquettes should more than pay for the cost of mining. A ton of this new coal will yield not only fuel for the furnace, but also fuel for the flavor, cooking gas for the kitchen range, fertilizers, high explosives, cosmetics and a number of other things.

The consumer will call the new product brown coal, but the scientist will know it as lignite. Lignite, the poor relation of the black coal known today, has been despised and ignored for generations, but it is at last coming into its own as the benefactor of mankind.

The United States has the world's greatest supply of lignite. There are some thousand billion odd tons of it waiting to be mined. The supply is practically inexhaustible. Long after the last piece of black coal has been mined the lignite mines will still be doing business and the many by-products of lignite will be used in the household and shop. Lignite is according to experts of the Bureau of Mines, the commercial and economic future of the United States.

This heretofore despised member of the coal family, they say, is to supplement the rapidly dwindling petroleum supply of this country. It is well known that about half of our petroleum production is gone and that practically every American oil field is on the producing down grade. Without fuel oil and lubricating oil our Army and Navy in time of war would be so terribly handicapped as to invite defeat. In time of peace our merchant marine and industries generally would perish unless some substitute is found.

Lignite is not a newly discovered substance. It is far from a mystery in the scientific world and its powerful possibilities have long been thoroughly understood. But lignite has been apparently hopeless from a commercial viewpoint. It was known as the softest, dustiest, poorest grade of coal except. It was known that its physical and chemical characteristics lay somewhere between those of peat and bituminous coal.

It was unmarketable chiefly because it parts with most of its moisture when exposed to the weather and falls into dust much more rapidly than ordinary coal. When first dug it is spongy, containing anywhere from 27 to 29 per cent of water. Once taken from the ground its disintegration is rapid. Unless loaded immediately into cars in zero weather, it sticks with the evaporation of its moisture and cracks like dry mud, falling into dust.

Science has now solved this problem by distilling the more volatile substances out of lignite, and pressing the residue into smokeless briquettes. The briquettes are to be used in the family and shop furnace. The distillation products include gas oils, tars, dyes, fertilizers, drugs, photographic chemicals, acids, perfumes, and a variety of other commodities. The practicability of this has been proved. All that is needed is a lignite distilling plant. The United States Bureau of Mines is back of the project, to create such an industry.

The United States holds the greatest deposits of lignite. But there are numerous smaller bodies of it scattered throughout Europe. Germany has the lignite fields and is making great strides in the use of them.

The fuel problem has been even a more serious matter in Europe than in this country. In fact it has been regarded as the most serious obstacle in the road to her economic recovery. Germany is suffering with the rest of the European nations. Her fuel famine has threatened her industrial progress for many years. She is now turning to lignite as a solution, and so is showing the United States the way.

Brown coal mining as now practiced in Germany is simple. As in this country the coal beds lie very near the surface. Some of the beds are within 50 feet of the surface. Near Hale one may see the farmers mining their brown coal for domestic use. For machinery they use spades. The coal when used in this primitive state is not of course, the refined, perfected form of fuel it will be when manufactured into briquettes. But it is fuel and the German peasant finds it satisfactory. The German industry, however, sees the possibilities of brown coal as a factory fuel. In Germany there is a brown coal boom. The scientific and industrial forces of the nation are centered up on making lignite a commercial asset.

The scientific German has commercially utilized his lignite beds to some extent for years past, though the industry is spoken of as a new thing. For example, in 1913 Germany exported to the United States, which has the greatest lignite beds in the world, coal tar products made largely from lignite, to the value of $22,000,000. The United States has annually imported for years millions of gallons of creosoting oils that are simple distilled elements of lignite. This country has always been one of the chief purchasers of European fertilizers. Lignite is one of the most important sources of fertilizer known. The fertilizer, known scientifically as ammonium sulphate, also contains in great quantities ingredients used in high explosives.

It is also worthy of note that lignite was the source of the starching used abroad during the war as a sugar substitute.

Again lignite, through one of its by-products, paraffin, is relieving the soap families that has annoyed Europe for these past several years. It is hoped by European scientists that paraffin produced from lignite will eventually end the shortage of edible fats by making it unnecessary to use them for industrial purposes.

So Europe has awakened to lignite possibilities. The United States, encouraged by the Bureau of Mines is awakening. Our lignite fields are vastly larger than any in European nations. CAINE.
There is always a burden to bear.
There is always a task to face.
There is never a day that comes our way
And never a sunny place.
But knows the shadow of sorrow too.
For it is made up of things to do.WE CANNOT FOREVER SMILE.
Not always be light of heart.
And foolish the man who thinks he can
Escape from the cares of earth.
The rich and poor, the great and low,
Must come to trouble and bear his blow.NOT EVER THE SUN SHALL SHINE.
Not always the sky be fair.
And none can say he has laughed away
The cares that was his to bear.
And never a man shall live life's years
Without their trials and their griefs and tears.FOR SORROW AND CARE.
As the day is growing by,
And the shadow falls on us one and all.
And the bravest of men must sigh
For each shall find, till his time is through,
That life is made up of things to do.

GIRLS WILL BE GIRLS.
In days gone by 'twas thought quite fine
To pen your favorite ditty at rhyme,
And loving swains would screame.BUT MODERN TIMES HAVE BROUGHT A CHANGE:
To write a rhyme is thought quite strange.
Now, when it costs like heck to live,
You must do something expensive.ONCE, GIRLS WERE AWAY FROM HOME,
Who wrote love ditties or could fence,
But now, that bird is very sweet.
Who shakes a pair of wicked feet.IN SPITE OF ALL THAT HAS BEEN SAID,
Of modern times on those long dead,
The chicks did, and will ever, fall
For him whose bankroll is not small.

JUSTICE EDWARD DOUGLAS WHITE.

EDWARD DOUGLAS WHITE, chief justice of the U. S. supreme court, may retire soon because of ill health, according to rumors from Washington. That he has been desirous of resigning for some time is generally known. His departure from the supreme bench will be a loss, as he is one of the commanding figures of the judicial world.

The Story of a Woman's Transformation

CHAPTER CX.

THE PUZZLE.
I dropped the subject after Violet's answer to my question about Bud. I did not want to tell me confidence. If she wanted to tell me she would in good time—perhaps after Francis had left.

"What do you think of our family, Violet?" Francis asked.

"That's not a fair question to put, is it? For you would have to say something polite."

"No, for after all, you belong to my family now—as well as to that one," Francis answered with a smile.

"Yes, so I do. I can't ever get over it." Violet's eyes were softening now, as she turned to Francis.

The pink was running back to her cheeks, too—I was always amazed at the girl's sensitiveness. I decided to keep the talk away from Bud.

"I think our family represents the great tragedy of neglected opportunity," Francis said finally.

"And your brother James, who is really most delightful, is the victim of the tragedy."

"Yes, poor James! Sometime I'll get him away from the farm and start his doing something he'll like—something he can make a career in."

Violet said, assuming suddenly a very grown-up air.

"It's all come. It's not there. I'm afraid," Francis said kindly. "I would help—well both help. Violet—if your brother breaks away. But he won't do it. He hasn't the initiative for that one step. And he has to have that much. We can't do it all—not for a boy. It wouldn't be good for him."

"No, Violet agreed, regret in her voice. "We'll simply hope that some day you'll get up the courage to break away."

At this moment, Helen knocked again in. I was delighted to see her again. Toby was with her, and for half an hour we all sat and gossiped while I heard about everything that had happened while I was away.

"There's to be an art students' ball in two weeks—do you know, Enid, that's a few days after you said

I was starved? Let's hope it's a week—everybody's so anxious about it again," Francis said. So I took refuge in inconsequential things and pretended great interest in the students' ball.

"Toby and I are taking Vi," Helen

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON.

Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Last fall I met a boy who paid a great deal of attention to me. He took me to several dances.

A short time ago I was back at my friend's attending a party. This boy brought me home and asked me if he might write to me. I gave him permission. Since then we have been corresponding in a friendly way. But two weeks ago I received a letter from him, very humble but sentimental, telling me how much he loved me.

As I am only 20, I feel I am too young to take anyone seriously. Should I write to him telling him so, or would it be better to have a date with him?

And Helen thus tactfully carried off both Vi and her guest and left Francis and me facing each other with an understanding smile in our eyes.

"They always manage to leave an engaged couple alone for a few minutes," he said, as I came towards the table.

And then, after a few moments, he kissed me again.

"It's after 10, and you're tired. I'm your 'long ride,'" he said. "So I'll wait only for a glimpse of our Vi in her gorgeous costume, and go home. Tomorrow you are to dine with Mother and me at the house. I'll come for you on the way from the office."

He left soon after Vi came to again respond into a slim little princess out of a fairy tale by her fantastic costume. Her slender little figure was tightly fitted by the silver tissue, which ended in full Turkish bloomers around her ankles, and over this was draped the cloudy blue chiffon. Arms and neck were bare, except for the ropes of wax pearls which wound around her throat, with a strand caught up and pinned into her hair. Her golden hair was combed right in her head. She had touched the center of her lips with scarlet, and headed her lashes black, to carry out the fantastic effect.

My little country girl had vanished completely! Before me stood one of the most beautiful young women I had ever seen! Self-posse, sure of her looks, and as certain of every word, every gesture. She had a little lift in her shoulders as she turned around, a little arch to her eyebrows.

"Vi," I said suddenly, "you are grown up!"

AN UGLY DUCKLING.

Louise has its place in life, but it is super-fictitious and when overdone loses its mirth and becomes tedious.

Do not let it be like this, but be willing to continue the friendship until you are older and ready to make so important a decision as becoming betrothed.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been going with a boy for over a year and he gave me a watch of his to remember him by. My parents disapproved of my going with him and so I requested him to take back the watch. He said he would trust me with anything of his. Then he got a job and I worked for him.

Tomorrow you are to dine with Mother and me at the house. I'll come for you on the way from the office.

He has written two letters wanting the jewelry. Would it be all right to keep it after he refused to take it when I wanted him to?

If it is broken, should I give him money to fix it? If he wants to come back, would it be right or would you let him know and see if he can find a clean lady like the one he once went with?

GRAYCE G.

Return the jewelry. It will not be necessary to send money to have repair work done, but it would be courteous to have the jewelry repaired before sending it back.

I doubt if the young man will want to come back. Since he is asking for

VIVIANI GETS U. S. IDEAS ON LEAGUE

Noted Frenchman Confers With Harding and Hughes, Important Results.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington.—Preliminary conversations between the government of France and the United States conducted by former Premier Viviani and President Harding, Secretary of State Hughes and Under-Secretary Fletcher lead to the conclusion that important developments will result from the conference.

The American government has taken advantage of the opportunity to say formally to former Premier Viviani exactly what it thinks of the moral influence of the league of nations and the likelihood of American participation, especially when that league has thus far disregarded protests made by the United States on matters vital to America.

Enthusiasm Is Contested.

In other words, former Premier Viviani's enthusiasm for the league has been countered to some extent by pertinent questions concerning the meaning of the recent refusal of the league of nations to heed America's protests concerning the Japanese mandate in the island of Man and other mandates in the Far East.

Broadly speaking, former Premier Viviani has learned already some fundamentals of American policy that must be taken into consideration if Europe expects American participation. One of these principles is that the United States must not be left in a position less free in world diplomacy than she had before 1914. Indeed, the principle of the "open door," which was a creation of commercial opportunity for American mechanics, is paramount, and the denial of that opportunity has been seized upon by the Harding administration as an argument against the kind of league that is in existence at present in Europe.

Harding Plan Not Known.

The details of just what kind of an association of nations the Harding administration prefers have not yet been worked out. Thus far the conversations have merely covered general principles. But the spokesman of the United States government have made it clear that traditional American policy calls for freedom of action all along the line. It means partnership with other nations for the preservation of peace but no hard and fast rules regarding the use of military force. If military force is needed, the United States wants to be in a position to judge for itself whether the cause is just and whether it is a matter in which the United States need participate. The tendency is to let European nations preserve peace in European spheres of influence, whereas the United States will correspondingly look after such outbreaks in this hemisphere as threaten the peace and commerce of the rest of the world. The con-tentional idea is strongly implanted in the mind of the new administration.

Visit Is Premature.

It is a little early for the views of the Harding administration to become crystallized on foreign policy, and in some, formal, Premier Viviani's visit is a trifling procedure. Charles Evans Hughes, secretary of state, has hardly had a chance to familiarize himself with the documents in the case. It is one thing to read in the newspapers what has been done by the United States government in the last three or four years, but to follow up these conferences with a follow-up return to France and an effort made to meet the American point of view.

Hughes Makes Study.

Thus far Mr. Hughes, whose mind is particularly well trained in the absorption of data in quick time, has not had a fair chance to digest the material at his elbow. He and his associates in the department of state are making a comprehensive survey of what has been said and done by the preceding administration. This is, to a certain extent, embarrassing. Mr. Hughes is not a follower of former Premier Viviani because he has not been able to get through the mass of papers which comprise the complete record of America's negotiations with Europe.

Secretary Hughes incidentally will carry on the principal conversations with former Premier Viviani and will advise President Harding of the status of each conference so that when the distinguished Frenchman sees the American again he will have a chance to learn the fundamental's of Secretary Hughes. Mr. Harding himself is relying on Mr. Hughes to frame a foreign policy, and therefore the real negotiations may be said to be going on at the department of state rather than the White House.

Somehow or other, with the experience in the last administration, when the strong personality of Mr. Wilson and his insistence on handling foreign policy dwarfed the importtant position to judge for itself whether the cause is just and whether it is a matter in which the United States need participate. The tendency is to let European nations preserve peace in European spheres of influence, whereas the United States will correspondingly look after such outbreaks in this hemisphere as threaten the peace and commerce of the rest of the world. cerned idea is strongly implanted in the mind of the new administration.

Appeal Taken in Assault Case

An appeal was filed in the Rock creek circuit court Thursday afternoon in the assault case of Ray Lightbryer against George Whiting, Janesville railroad employee. The case was tried in the Rock county municipal court, Janesville, where the plaintiff was awarded damages amounting to $100 and costs.

The complaint in the action alleges that the defendant, Whiting, assaulted Lightbryer and broke his nose in a fight on Nov. 29, 1920.

Travelling Men Would Have Hotels Post Prices

Madison.—Traveling salesmen are asking the legislature to compel hotel and innkeepers to post prices of rooms in the lobbies and rooms of their establishments through a bill introduced by Senator R. J. Nye, considered by the senate state affairs committee Thursday. Discrimination against traveling men was charged by John Bloush, chairman of the Wisconsin branch of the United Commercial Travellers. In times of conventions or when rooms are in great demand, hotel keepers raise their rates and charge unfair prices, it was claimed. Amendments to the Nye bill were offered providing that in case two persons slept in the same bed the second person would not be charged more than 50 per cent of the posted rate. In cases where cots were used in sample rooms or in hallways, the maximum price shall be fixed at $1 another amendment provides.

Wire Market Reports for Farmers Planned

Madison.—Activities of the division of markets in cooperating with the farmers of Wisconsin during the year and a half of its existence were explained to the joint finance committee Thursday by Mr. Foster, executive representative on the division. Studying of commodity inspection work and market news dissemination were pointed to as the leading accomplishments of the newly created department. Cooperative enterprises in some instances were aided in their organization and in stabilizing their business establishments, Mr. Foster said.

The division is asking for an increased appropriation to carry on the market news work through a leased wire system, giving daily reports from the leading markets of the country. Such an arrangement is necessary to insure the farmers accurate information concerning distribution of their products, it was said.

CALL UPON FANS
TO TAKE TICKETS
IN CLUB FASTER

By FRANK SINCLAIR

This is April fool's day. The ones in Janesville who are having the biggest joke played on them are the ones who think that the baseball team will be able to exist on sweet nothing.

It's a good time to do a little plain talking. Checking up Friday morning at the stores where the membership tickets for the Tractor City Little League Association are on sale, and adding these to previous subscriptions made at the Tractor City show, and at the first attempt to sound out popular sentiment, the situation is that 262 tickets have been sold or will be sold; this will bring in $1410; the need is for $5,000.

Just backward.

If Janesville is to continue to keep the baseball team—there is every belief that this will—the fans and other sportsmen must get on their toes and add their only way to act is to subscribe five dollars a piece now. They will do it without a doubt, but they are just a little backward in coming forward.

Thursday a telegram was received from Pitcher Smithson, a recruit to the club, that he is on his way here from the sunny South to join the team.

Salutes paid.

Friday the officers and directors of the organization felt the first real effects of taking over the club. The salaries of the players came due. What the public will be interested to know is that they were paid.

Thursday evening, the officials held a meeting at the club to discuss the committee appointed to raise the funds necessary to announced plans for a big drive for memberships and finances. Minor details will hold this campaign on until the middle of next week.

With Hold Club.

A statement issued Friday morning assures the public that the club will positively be taken care of and kept here. It pleads for the public to join here at once, however, and early for tickets. It is appreciated that as many people have been waiting to have someone come around to solicit their membership.

The biggest display of enthusiasm so far came at the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis club Thursday. There 37 memberships were sold in a few minutes.

Manager Perino is in Chicago Friday attending meeting of the Central Industrial League.

Tickets can be procured at:

DROWNED BABY IS NOT IDENTIFIED

Bitter was expressed by Coronor Olsen, Rockford, Thursday, that the identity of the babe whose body was taken from Rock river at the Rockton dam would never be known as the body had probably been in the water several months. One theory was advanced that it was cast into the water at Beloit and floated down to the Rockton dam. No inquest will be held.

IS BADLY POLLUTED

Uniforms were given out and the players indulged in an hour and a half of batting and fielding practice under the direction of Coach Crumb and Prof. W. D. Burdick, Capt. ## RELIGIOUS STRIFE IN IRELAND STUDIED Committee Makes Supplementary Report on Catholic-Protestant Relations.

[See ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington.—Religious aspects of the troubles in Ireland are discussed in a report made public here Friday which supplements the 30,000-word findings of the Commission of One Hundred, investigating the Irish question. The supplementary report, made by the Protestant members of the commission, summarizes the evidence presented at the hearings held here in November, December and January, as follows:

1. "Outside of a part of Ulster, Catholics and Protestants live in peace and harmony and their political opinions are not primarily a matter of religion.

2. "Even in Ulster religious bigotry is not by any means universal and anti-toryism is artificially stirred up by those whose economic and political interests are served by dividing the people."

3. "While it obviously lies beyond our province to pass final judgment upon the various aspects of the Ulster issue, we have not only a right but a duty as American Protestants to denounce the degradation of religion by such persons as occurred last summer. Up to this subject we owe to our fellow religionists both in America and in Ulster, to speak plainly."

All But One Protestant.

All of the members of the commission, excepting United States Senator David L. Walsh of Massachusetts, who were chosen by the committee to conduct the inquiry, are Protestants.

The only evidence before the commission concerning serious religious controversy resulting in the destruction of life and property dealt with the riots of the summer of 1920, the report says.

Referring to the Belfast disorders beginning July 21, 1920, in which by the end of August, 56 persons were killed, the commission observed that: "these riots between Protestants and Catholics in which Protestants were the aggressors took part of the character of Russion pogrom against the Jews."

Ulster Pogrom Stirred Up.

"The Ulster pogroms," the report continued, "were not primarily due to a spontaneous flare-up of smoldering religious animosity rather promoted by those whose economic and political interests were opposed both to strong labor unionism and to Irish republicanism. Certain manufacturers and unionist politicians, it was alleged, had taken alarm at the solidarity of labor, Protestant and Catholic, shown in the great shipyard strike of 1919."

As regards the rest of Ireland outside the region immediately about Belfast, the Commission says, it was "impressed by the evidence of lack of any religious strife." It also charged that Sir Edward Carson, former leader in Ulster, "would seem to have accepted a Home Rule act which gives his party practically what it wants in Ulster at the price of delivering over the Protestant minority in the rest of Ireland to the majority rule of their Catholic neighbors."

On the other hand, the report continued: "In Ireland there was according to the census of 1911, 3,147,594 non-Catholics as against 3,242,570 Catholics." * * * Of these non-Catholics $90,000 (as compared with 680,869 Catholics) are in Ulster, leaving 2,567,734 non-Catholics (as compared with 2,661,753 Catholics) in all the rest of Ireland. This small minority is, of course, physically at the mercy of the Catholic majority. Yet there is on record not one single case of attack upon the life and property of any Protestant on account of his religion. The Catholics were aware of the Ulster pogroms, they suffered under imperial British forces predominantly Protestant in religion who did not spare their priests, convents and churches, yet they were guilty of no reprisals of any sort upon their Protestant neighbors."

Turn to Republic.

The alleged "excesses of the British forces in Ireland," the report said, "were tended to dispose Southern Protestants favorably toward the republican government." Protestant business men, clergymen and farmers were reported as resorting to republican courts. The commission stated that Miss Mary Glascow and other witnesses had failed to its attention that "most of the patriotic acts in Ireland's history were Protestant."

It was said that they further testified that the republican leaders included a number of prominent Protestants, among them Ernest Blythe of the Irish Congress, Captain Herbert Barton and Erskine Childers.

The commission said it was convinced that "not only were some Protestants republicans but that the Catholics anti-republicans." The latter included members of the Catholic clergy, who at best it was said were "decidedly lukewarm toward Sinn Fein."

One of the witnesses, the report said, cited the case of a priest "who refused to lead his flock in prayers for Terence MacSwiney during his hunger strike."

SHOPPIRE

Shopper—Mrs. R. Genwick entered her young woman's class at her school at the Anti-Catholics Anti-republicans. The latter included members of the Catholic clergy, who at best it was said were "decidedly lukewarm toward Sinn Fein."

QUIET ELECTIONS ARE PREDICTED IN WALWORTH COUNTY

Elkhorn.—Tuesday's election promises to be unusually quiet throughout Walworth county. The contest for state superintendent of schools excites little interest and Miss Helen Farnham, 30-year-old county superintendent of schools, has no opposition. Whitewater is interested in the election of mayor. Clarence Barton is an active candidate against Mr. Shock, the present incumbent, with a following in some of the wards for aldermen. Charlie Wurth, present chairman of the town of Geneva and active in the Non-partisan League, is opposed by Oscar Johnson, while C. E. Brinkman and William Miller are both candidates for chairman of the town of Troy. An interesting election is expected in the village of East Troy, where the women and their brooms are out for house-cleaning. In nearly all the precincts, there are no contests.

TRAGIC STORY OF A STATELY GANDER AND BLIND OX

[By Associated Press.]

Greensboro, Ala.—The blind ox, famous as the protege of a stately gander on the J. A. Holcroft plantation near here, is dead, and those on the farm believe his death is due directly to separation from his gander.

Recently it became necessary to transport the ox to another pasture. The gander was unable to follow. The separation was too much for the ox and he pined and drooped, refused food and drink, and finally laid down and died.

The ox and gander lately attracted widespread attention. Each day at regular intervals the gander would lead the ox to water by strutting ahead of him, barking loudly so that his attached wire collar followed the sound. If other cattle approached, the fowl would fly furiously at them and drive the intruders off.

POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENT

Written and publication authorized by the Young Men's Business Club and paid for by them at the rate of 8¢ per inch.

A MAJORITY of the heavy tax-payers of Janesville are in sympathy with Mayor Welsh's administration of city affairs. They feel that every dollar spent in taxes for city improvements has been well spent and are willing to pay their share to promote the community's interests as well as their own.

The Young Men's Business Club is not advocating a high tax rate and is not in sympathy with any plan to recklessly spend the public's money. It realizes that improvements must be made if Janesville is to go forward. It believes it is better to make improvements when actually needed than defer them until the city gets back into a condition which existed for many years.

City improvements mean increased property values. Keen business men are willing to pay for those improvements if they see a substantial return on tax investment.

Not only do business men and heavy tax-payers profit indirectly, but small taxpayers and those who do not pay taxes benefit directly.

The men and women who work must have recreation. Many can not have it if the city does not share in providing such facilities.

The Young Men's Business Club cannot favor the candidacy of any man who is opposed to furnishing the working man and woman with the opportunity of indulging in recreation. It believes the city should furnish parks and playgrounds.

A definite program for improving school facilities has been started under the present administration. Any step at this time to halt the movement for giving Janesville's children every educational advantage under modern and sanitary conditions would be deplorable.

Mayor Welsh has co-operated in the movement for better schools and this club feels assured that if he is returned to office that program will be carried out.

Here's More Evidence of Leath's Great Selling Power

Quality Plus

Our policy is to offer our patrons the superb quality which leads them to believe that "If it's from Leath's it's Better."

Our $1,000,000 backing enables us to take advantage of the wonderful buys which come to the firm with the ready cash. Lately we have been fortunate in securing some tremendous values in high grade bedroom and dining room suites. Two of them are featured below—you had better see them tomorrow—as quantities are limited.

This Rich Brown Mahogany Bedroom Suite $145 all Three Pieces

We're so enthusiastic about this remarkable offering that we have placed it in our window, so that you can see it and realize how exceptional a value is represented in this suite.

The manufacturer had these suites made up, and needed money in a hurry. We got an exceedingly low price by taking the entire stock for spot cash. In all our experience we have never seen such a genuinely handsome and high grade suite for the price.

Each of our stores has just five suites to sell—after these are gone you won't be able to get one. Therefore, you are urged to come early tomorrow if you want what we consider the most alluring value it is possible to offer today and for a long time to come.

The Refined Simple Beauty of the Bed

Will appeal to lovers of true elegance of line combined with superlative quality. The rich finish and beautiful grain of this mahogany bed gives the impression of a most expensive piece, and really it is practically impossible to duplicate this value anywhere today.

Only $19.00 For This Red Cedar Chest

Generous in size, solidly built, beautifully polished, this chest is surely a handsome piece for milady. Only a limited number to sell at this special price of $19.00.

Reflects beauty and luxury that is generally associated with the highest priced furniture.

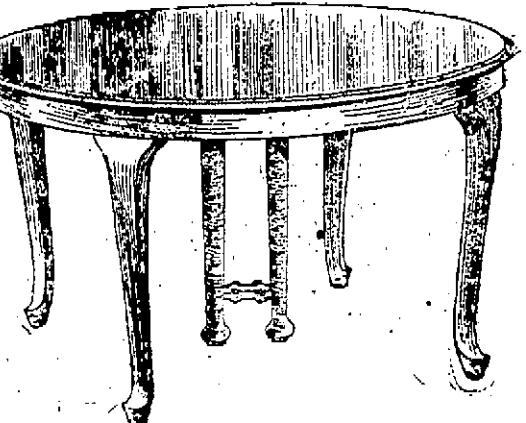

The dust-proof construction, the large plate mirror, the lustrous finish, all bespeak the finest that money can buy. Yet at our special price, it is indeed a remarkable value.

LET'S WALK AROUND AND SEE LEATH'S WINDOWS.

Beauty and simplicity are expressed in the highest degree in this refined design. The triplicate mirrors are heavy plate and the general appearance of this table appeals to those who know furniture.
